

Coolidge Strong Betting Favorite; New York World Forecasts His Election

Fair Weather Looked Upon to Bring Out Greatest Vote in Nation's History.

NEWCOMERS MAY FIGURE

Between Three and Six Millions, Estimated, to Cast Their First Ballots Today; Speculation on Electoral Vote LaFollette May Receive.

By United Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Calvin Coolidge ruled a strong favorite in the betting today as the American people once more went to the polls to elect their President.

With fair weather general, however, and an increased registration that forecast the greatest vote in history, it was conceivable that the final decision would rest with between 3,000,000 and 5,000,000 voters casting their ballots for the first time this year. The unknown trend of this vote caused vast uncertainty about the outcome today, though there was two weeks ago.

"The next cheer for the Democrats that the New York World (strongly for John W. Davis) could muster in its headline was the following: 'Coolidge Victory Forecast, Though Upset is Possible.'"

Such wagers as were placed as the actual voting began were on the number of electoral votes each candidate would get. Some money was placed on the ability to name four states LaFollette might carry. Those who entered a risk on this selected Virginia, North and South Dakota, and Minnesota, with some naming Nebraska and Louisiana among the possibilities.

It was conceded LaFollette would not get the electoral vote that was won by Theodore Roosevelt in 1912 when he ran second to Woodrow Wilson, with 48 votes in the electoral college, but there was great interest in observing whether LaFollette would poll the popular vote of over 1,000,000 polled for Roosevelt in that election.

With 266 electoral votes necessary to win, conservative Republican spokesmen forecast not less than 300 for Coolidge, while optimistic Democratic spokesmen figured Davis to win with between 280 and 300.

NEW YORK ODDS ON COOLIDGE 11 TO 1

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Plenty of money to bet at odds of 11 to 1 that President Coolidge will be re-elected was reported by J. S. Freed & Company, Broad street broker, today.

One prominent Democrat of Richmond Hills bet $7,500 to $500—odds of 15 to one—on Coolidge, the brokerage house stated.

Odds that Governor Smith would be elected were two and one-half to one, while the odds against LaFollette were 35 to one.

The brokers held some money to bet at 10 to 1 that the election would not go into the House.

Lockhart Firm Does Not Plan To Desert City

A committee of Connellsville business men, composed of representatives of City Council, the Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs met yesterday in McKees Rocks with T. J. Gillespie, secretary and treasurer of the Lockhart Iron & Steel Company, J. Porter Gillespie, former superintendent of the mill here, and J. M. Gillespie, another official of the company.

The meeting was arranged on request of the local committee. It had been organized for the purpose of visiting the Lockhart officials with a view to expressing to them the sentiment of Connellsville towards the company and learn, if possible, what the plans were concerning the rebuilding of the Silgo mill, destroyed by fire last summer.

The steel men expressed gratification at the community interest shown in their concern and while it was said the condition of the iron market, just now at low ebb, would govern the future steps, pertaining to the mill, there was no intention to desert the city. The good will of Connellsville people was greatly appreciated, the committee was assured.

The Connellsville group included James W. Wardlaw of City Council, Charles T. Kepner of Chamber of Commerce, W. D. McGinnis of the Rotary Club, J. Donald Porter of the Kiwanis Club, and R. M. Marshall of Dunbar.

BIG CROWD OUT FOR OPENING OF NARROWS ROAD

Dancing on Improved Highway Chief Pastime of Hundreds of Merrymakers.

FINE LUNCH IS SERVED

A crowd estimated at between 2,000 and 3,000 people made merry on the Narrows Monday night in celebration of the opening of the new stretch of road, completing the improved highway from Connellsville to Broad Ford. Now that the Narrows road denier will no longer have to be isolated in winter months because of the muddy thoroughfare they are a happy lot and the celebration last night carried a significance with it for them.

The chief entertainment feature was round and square dancing, indulged in on the road on top of the Narrows, where the new section intersects with the old brick highway. An orchestra furnished the music.

The committee, headed by E. L. Boyd, did everything to show the guests a pleasant evening. Among his assistants were Paul Sandusky, Brady's, Keneth Klingensmith, William Pearl and others.

Everything was free. One hundred and fifty dozen of doughnuts were distributed, together with seven bushels of apples, two boxes of lollypops, 1,000 cups of coffee, a dozen big cakes and 200 sandwiches for the band and orchestra.

Much of the refreshments was received through donations. The remainder was purchased by the committee, which solicited some funds to make the road celebration possible.

Mayor C. C. Mitchell of Connellsville was a guest and the principal speaker. Others who talked were E. L. Boyd and John G. Haynes, the latter a road supervisor. Mr. Boyd laid the foundation of the road 12 years ago.

The road has been in use since October 23, but last night's program marked the formal opening.

1,507 Voters Visit Polls In Half Day

There was a good vote in the morning hours in this city. At 2:30 o'clock a total of 1,507 ballots had been cast in the seven wards. Indications were that a great majority of these were Republicans.

Considering the total registration in each ward, voting was a little slower in the Third Ward than any other in the city.

That ward, however, was leading slightly in the number cast, at the hour the figures were secured, showing 312 ballots. In the Fifth 310 had visited the polls.

The Fourth Ward stood third with 241 voters and others were: First, 211; Second, 189; Sixth, 111; Seventh, 123.

The total, 1,507, was within a few hundred votes of being half the total registration in the city. The rush hours were expected between 5 and 7 o'clock this evening, when many men and women visit the polls after their working hours. The total registration is 5,883.

Ideal weather prevailed and the warm sun made it comfortable for the workers and others who stayed in the vicinity of the voting places. Many party workers had automobiles in use, going to the homes of women to get them out to vote.

STUDENT VOTE OVERWHELMINGLY FOR COOLIDGE

Reports that a stray vote, taken in the Connellsville High School, yesterday was overwhelmingly in favor of Robert M. LaFollette, independent candidate for President, proved erroneous.

A vote was not taken in all the classes, being confined to some students of the seventh and eighth grades, freshmen and sophomores.

In freshmen and sophomore classes as the vote was: Coolidge 87, Davis 36; LaFollette 35.

In classes of the seventh and eighth grades the result was: Coolidge 103; Davis 7; and LaFollette 43.

Two sections of Grade 7 alone that were canvassed showed: Coolidge 43; Davis 6, and LaFollette 8.

The total given President Coolidge nearly twice as many votes as Davis and LaFollette combined, his total being 233, that of the Democratic nominee 19, and the sum for LaFollette 89.

A further straw vote was being taken in some of the classes today in connection with a study of the ballot and the election process.

Fish and Game Association Calls on Members to Obey Order on Hunting Season

Sportsmen of Fayette county have been "up in the air" relative to the proclamation of Governor Phipps ordering that the hunting season remain closed until sufficient rain has fallen to prevent forest fires.

Friday night's rain was a signal to rally into the woods Saturday. The day's hunt soon dried the leaves and by Sunday conditions were back about where they had been before the rain. Further action, it has been explained, was left to the district foresters, but publicity was not very extensive, with the result that scores of hunters took to the woods again Monday.

President H. L. Kropps of the Fayette County Fish and Game Protective Association said today that he had been advised by District Forester V. M. Bearse of Ligonier that the closing order in Fayette county is absolute, not specifically to November 6, but to such time as sufficient rain has fallen to prevent forest fires. Acting on instructions from the forester, Mr. Kropps said, nearly 200 fire wardens and deputy game wardens have been

Each of the Three Parties Made Mistakes in Strategy In Course of the Campaign

Republican Managers Displayed Much Greater Skill Than Opponents.

TROUBLES BEGAN EARLY

For the Democrats; New York Convention Made It Impossible for Davis to Reconcile Opposing Wings; LaFollette on Defensive.

By DAVID LAWRENCE Copyright, 1924, by The Courier.

(This is the third of a series of four dispatches written after a 1,000-mile journey through virtually every one of the northern and western states, the most extensive tour of investigation made by any one newspaper in the present campaign. In the first dispatch Mr. Lawrence predicted the election of Coolidge and Davis a unit, in the second, the retention of nominal control by the Republicans in Congress.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—It's almost over so a retrospect can be made not only with impartial judgment but without thought of influencing votes, a circumstance which prevents leaders themselves from admitting mistakes during the progress of the campaign itself.

But there have been mistakes made. Every one of the three boards of strategy guiding the destinies of Coolidge, LaFollette and Davis did things which each might have avoided. Yet if one is to judge by the effect on the election, the Republican managers blundered least of all, in fact the campaign conducted for the President was about the most skillfully handled in the present generation. Nothing compares with it unless perhaps the management of the 1916 campaign by the Democrats, when they re-elected Wilson by having him make occasional speeches from Shadow Lake, N. H., and by working the prosperity issue to its last ounce of vote-getting strength.

Whether money did or enthusiasm, or the momentum of federal office-holders, the fact remains that the Republicans were fully under way in every state of the union months before their opponents started. This was due partly to the certainty as early as last April that Calvin Coolidge would be the Republican presidential nominee. Organizations formed in the primary campaigns in the several states were easily carried on. The structure was there and needed little to build upon.

The nomination of Dawes for vice-president and the injection of the Ku Klux Klan issue in several local situations were the only factors that necessitated a revision of plans. The selection of Dawes was not as popular in the west as it was in the east. The LaFollette movement would have hardly gotten to firm base in the west had Judge Kenyon, for instance been named as a running mate to President Coolidge. As it was the western progressives centered their attack on Dawes. City bankers are not popular in agricultural areas and the machine of the Democratic Party of the biggest banking institutions in Chicago on the ticket with Coolidge enabled the LaFollette people to make an effective campaign in the western states. President Coolidge's strength, however, was greater than any single issue or personality in the campaign. Also in the cities of the west among business men and bankers, the fame of Dawes in the European settlement made him exactly the type of candidate the conservative Republicans wanted.

On the Ku Klux Klan issue, the policy of silence maintained by the President has cost him many votes but in most of the states this was outweighed by votes gained because of his indifference to the issue. The opposing camps never succeeded in convincing the electors that the President was in sympathy with the Klan. Indeed, the publication of the letter of the President's secretary, C. Bascom Sloop, stating that Mr. Coolidge was neither a member of the Klan nor in sympathy with its objects, was a clever piece of strategy and did much to recover lost ground when nothing was said about it after John W. Davis's first speech at New City, N. J.

While the President made few speeches, and silence can often be a virtue, there is no doubt that so far as the campaign itself is concerned, this hurt him somewhat. The American people like a active president.

CLEANER STREETS RESOLUTION ADOPTED BY CLUB WOMEN

A resolution for cleaner streets was adopted at the semi-monthly meeting of the Women's Culture Club held yesterday afternoon in the club rooms of the Carnegie Free Library. The resolution, which was brought before the club by Mrs. J. J. Thompson, chairman of the civic committee and favorably passed upon by all the club members, asks that the city streets be cleaned more often to protect the health of the children and adults. Because of infectious diseases being more prevalent at this time of the year it is asked that all waste matter be taken care of, especially in the business section of the city and that the anti-spitting ordinance be enforced. A copy of the resolution was given to Mayor Charles C. Mitchell and the city council. The club women will give their hearty cooperation in the measure. Two new members, Mrs. Mary Lauterbach Martin and Mrs. William Griffiths were received. Mrs. E. H. Fitch, president of the club, presided over the business meeting.

"Federation Day" was observed by the club, the program being of a very interesting nature. Splendid reports of the annual meeting of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women held recently in the Germantown Club House, Philadelphia, were given by Mrs. Frank W. Wright and Mrs. A. E. Vannatta, delegates. A paper on "The Unprivileged Child," written by Mrs. Louise Reynolds, was read by Dr. Katherine Wakefield. The paper was very carefully prepared and gave statistics of children who are handicapped, either by being crippled or maimed in some manner. In Connellsville there are 71 such children. The paper also referred to the good work which is being done by the Keweenaw and Rotary clubs in Connellsville and other cities in aiding these children. Mrs. John J. Knox had charge of the musical program, which was greatly enjoyed by the club women. Miss Margaret Doll rendered two vocal solos, a Lullaby from Jocelyn and "Elegie," by Massenet, in a very delightful manner. Miss Lella Colborn was the accompanist. A program on "Edgar Guest" will be presented at the next meeting on November 17.

Masquerade Party.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hutz of Dickerson Run was the scene of a beautifully appointed masquerade party given Friday evening by Audreanne Hutz and Roseella Jones. The living room and reception hall were decorated in orange and black together with black cats, witches and other Halloween novelties. The most ghostly of all was a shock of corn-fodder in one corner of the room and decorated with electric lighted pumpkin faces peering from it. Little children, dressed as ghosts, were seated round about it, while the old witch lived back of it where each guest in turn had their fortune told. The chandeliers were shaded and the rooms presented a most mysterious place. Guests were cleverly costumed. Numbers were placed on guests as they arrived and each was given a pencil and paper, each person writing how they thought each number was, prizes being awarded on guessing the most. The evening was spent with music and games in keeping with the season. At 10 o'clock a dainty luncheon was served. All in attendance report a very enjoyable time.

Isarbach of the United Brethren Church at Scotland. The ceremony was performed at 8:30 o'clock. Owing to the recent illness of Mrs. Pickard and the recent death of the bridegroom's father, the wedding was a quiet one, those present being limited to the immediate families. There were no attendants Mr. and Mrs. Merritt left after the ceremony for Washington and other eastern points. On their return they will be at home with the groom's mother at 10 Grove street.

functions, and better school attendance by both high and grade school pupils. Social functions will be the secondary aim of the alumni.

Principal W. E. Tietbold acted as chairman until Mr. Colbert was named president and turned the meeting over to the new head. William McNulty acted as secretary until Miss Smith was elected.

Principal Tietbold was the principal speaker of the evening. In his talk he told how education by adjustment was replacing the old system of education by adaptation. "In the days of yore, the students had to adjust themselves to the studies of the school. That meant that a student expecting to go into the business world was called upon to take a course similar to that of a student intending to become a doctor."

"A high school was looked upon more as a preparatory school to college. Few persons who entered high school graduated. Now it is a different thing. Instead of making the student adapt himself to the studies, the studies are being adjusted to the environmental surroundings of the student. Such courses at the high school at present are being instituted that will be of the most value to the pupil. A person intending to take up activities in the business world will study along those lines, while a doctor will take studies that will prove to be most advantageous to himself."

Superintendent R. K. Smith of the township schools, gave a very interesting talk, telling the graduates of the numerous changes that have taken place in the high and grade schools since 1900. Mr. Smith named several of the numerous things that the alumni association could do for the high school.

An executive committee was appointed. On it the officers will serve and also the following: Mrs. Mary Fealy McGuff, class of 1905; William McNulty, class of 1911; Virginia Thiele, class of 1921; and John H. Whorle, class of 1923.

A committee was named to make a constitution and by-laws for the organization and on it are: Miss Nina Grace Smith, chairman, class of 1919; Winifred Hudkins, Thelma Carr and Joseph Hochmuth class of 1923, and William Stoner, class of 1919.

The next meeting night will be on Monday, December 1. The program committee selected is composed of John H. Whorle, chairman; Nellie Duff, class of 1923; Betty Crawford, class of 1915; and Margaret Duffy, class of 1914.

Each of the officers and committees will serve for one year that will end with the first Monday of every November. The class of 1921 had the best attendance. Of the total attendance of 82, 34 were members of the class. The classes of 1916, 1918, 1920, 1922 and 1923 were not represented. Mrs. Mary Fealy McGuff was the lone representative of the class of 1905, the first graduating class of the high school. A musical program was carried out. Miss Thelma Carr class of 1923, sang "In the Garden Tomorrow." She was accompanied by Miss Mary Herron, class of 1921, on the piano. Miss Herron gave a piano solo, entitled "Allie," Miss Helen Keffel, a member of the class of 1926 sang "At Dawning" and "The Little Tree." She was accompanied by Miss Mabel H. Wilt, a member of the faculty.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Tastes good and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most effective means of breaking up a stubborn cough. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its influence, coughing, sneezing, soreness, hoarseness, phlegm, wheezing, and other troubles, breaking in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, croup, throat trouble, laryngitis, asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar. Put in a few drops of lemon juice. A full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy for the same price. Room peacefully and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

ACTIVITIES OF THE RED CROSS.

As the time is approaching when the annual Red Cross Roll Call will be held, when old memberships will be renewed and new supporters of this great organization will be enrolled, it is of interest to know something about the diversified activities
of the Fayette County Chapter.

These include home service to ex-service men and their families, public health nursing, health centers and clinics, first aid, life saving, disaster relief and miscellaneous activities.

The local chapter has had its full share in all of these but, perhaps, to the greatest extent in the field of service to the soldiers of the World War which, since that great struggle, has been the paramount duty of the Red Cross.

During the last year 637 cases coming under this classification have been handled by the Fayette County Chapter, a highly creditable record
in itself, not taking into account other service rendered. Of this number 331 were new cases brought under the care of the Red Cross for the first time. The remainder were cases continued from the preceding year.

Special hospital care or medical treatment was provided 102 veterans; 338 required some form of federal relief by reason of their military service. Under the new adjusted compensation law 348 claims were filed.

In handling these soldier cases the diligence and necessity of the Red Cross have again been so satisfactorily demonstrated that there should be no hesitation on the part of present members to renew that relation for another year.

For the same reasons
there should be just as strong an appeal to other citizens, not heretofore enrolled, to have a small share in the magnificent work this great agency for mercy is doing day in and day out with fidelity to the objects for which it was created.

True to tradition the Republican candidates have had a loyal friend in the weatherman at today's election.

It is not too early for you to make up your mind that you will go ahead with your business and duties with new vigor and energy tomorrow, no matter how the election goes.

Are Conditions Ripening
For a Boom?

Forbes Magazine.

Why shouldn't business improve substantially?

Almost every major development
date towards expansion.

First—The gap between agricultural and merchandise prices has been virtually eliminated, so that our agricultural population will have income now on greatly increased purchasing power.

Second—Employment figures show improvement, and as real wages are about as high as ever known in this country, the purchasing power of our many millions of wage earners is at present to continue to be almost, if not quite, unprecedented.

Third—Money never before was more plentiful for business, industrial,
railroad and public utility purposes,
and as the rates charged are unusually low, our enterprising leaders will feel encouraged to borrow and utilize funds freely for a wide variety of purposes.

Fourth—Our transportation systems, representing an investment of over $20,000,000,000 and our largest speakers are better circumstanced financially than they have been in many years. They have been purchasing enormous quantities of equipment,
but as they never before were called upon to carry so great a volume of traffic, they are likely to continue to make unusually heavy expenditures—
and to be able to meet them.

Fifth—The demoralization in Europe has adversely affected our foreign trade during recent years, but now that Europe has definitely turned her back towards harmony and recupera-tion, the prospects are that this country will furnish various European countries hundreds of millions of dollars in the near future, and that one considerable part of this money will go to purchase American commodities and products.

Sixth—The election of Calvin Coolidge—if the election has that result—will be accepted by financial and business leaders as conducive to conservatism rather than radicalism at the seat of government, and this can scarcely fail to stimulate enterprise.

Seventh—Should the election be followed by an influx of buyers, the effect upon prices in most directions

Keeping Track of Election

Returns by Radio

Returns during this presidential election for the first time in history will be received by radio by millions of people in every section of the country.

The various broadcasting stations
have been engaged in perfecting plans
by which the results of the election will be carried through the air to radio fans who may sit in their homes
to learn the trend of the election.

Radio users accumulated a vast amount of political experience during the two conventions which, were broadcast. Receiving election returns will prove even more complicated, however, unless the listener is prepared to tabulate the early scattered figures as they begin to trickle in.

Long before the polls are closed in the far west many of the smaller precincts in the east will have completed and announced their count. Toward midnight the number of reported votes will swell in volume and unless the election proves a landslide, like 1920,
it will be only by careful computation
of this rising flood of early votes that the radio user, isolated in his home,
can be sure what the returns mean.

The presidential returns to most will be the center of interest. The radio listener should have a table showing the electoral vote of each state, how the state voted in the 1920 election. It is suggested that the radio fan who wishes to "keep his own score" as so many did during the balloting at the conventions, prepare a table by states in which to fill in the returns.

The radio listener can note on his table that the candidate is leading in a certain state and by watching the electoral vote of the state, begin to estimate how near the candidate is to the 268 necessary for election.

Another valuable clue to the trend
in an election while watching early returns is to compare them with the way the state went in 1920 election.
There would be little interest or decisive importance in returns showing Davis carrying Alabama or Coolidge carrying Pennsylvania, but if they showed Coolidge ahead in Alabama or Davis in Pennsylvania the listener, by reference to his table could immediately perceive that something of extraordinary import was occurring.

This presidential election will be more complicated to compute than any since 1912, because of the three tickets in the field.

Though of less intense interest than the presidential election the results of the senatorial and congressional contests are also of importance and on the whole far more difficult to tabulate.

late, victory of a congressional candidate is of little significance if he is merely carrying a district usually carried by his party.

It is probably impossible for the average listener to attempt to tabulate complete congressional returns.
However, the returns may have more meaning if the listener refers to tables
to see whether or not the unexpected is happening. If the Democrats retain their seats they will still lack a majority. But if they capture 20 Republican seats they will have command in the house. Early election returns may indicate to the radio listener whether the Republicans are increasing their present prearious majority or are losing it.

The various state contests, especially that for governor, will be simple to keep track of, compared to the national contests.

The following table shows the electoral vote by states in the election of 1920, when Harding, Republican, received 404 to 127 by Cox, Democrat:

Geography of the Electoral College

Choosing a president, today's event
is a United States political calendar, brings into the limelight the history of the electoral college, a practice of the medieval Holy Roman Empire and Maryland's contribution to the Constitution.

"Red wine, roast pork, chicken, pigeon, goose, rabbit, cakes and sweetmeats were part of the banquet of the electoral college in its earliest lusty German youth," says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society
from its headquarters at Washington, D. C. "Nothing as prosaic as a curried chicken would do for a Rheinish craftsman engaged in choosing an executive. The electoral college first appears growing out of well-defined sections of medieval 'Rotary' clubs in such lands as Cologne, and Mainz
along the Rhine.

The appearance of organized towns in Central Europe following the leavening influence of the Crusades, set the stage for a battle. That now figure, the merchant, began to refuse obedience to the extravagant fighting priestesses. With the aid of leaders of medieval unions or guilds, the merchants won freedom for their towns. To select the town administrators peacefully and to elect a merchant to electors to an election dinner party. Under the benign influence of much spiced food officers were elected and announced to the waiting populace. Election day was a holiday within the town.

"Out of the town 'Rotary' club
elections grew the Imperial Electoral College which proclaimed the head of the Holy Roman Empire. At Mainz, and later at Frankfurt, the bishops of Cologne and Mainz and a few nobles of larger German states met after the death of an emperor to elect his successor. Maryland's electoral college emerged from the present American electoral college are direct descendants of this Holy Roman Empire institution.

"The electoral college for which millions of citizens vote today, will never meet. In each of the 48 states certain little groups will gather and mail an envelope to Washington. The contents of this envelope will be counted by two tellers of the House of Representatives and read by the president of the Senate and the members of the electoral college will have been graduated until another four years.

"Difficulties of American parties in selecting candidates for presidential elections fade against drawbacks in the electoral college of cardinals at Rome. Undue delays led early to the present custom of regular election
during the voting for a pope.

cardinals' income was cut on during the convalescence, they were allowed one servant apiece, and they lived a common life without separate cells. Their food was passed through a guarded window. It consisted of only one dish after the first three days and bread and water after the fifth. When these measures, brought no result in 1268, the roof of the apse of the palace was taken off, and the cardinals swarmed out; and under the sky for nearly three years before they chose a pontiff.

"France has a $100,000,000 convention hall for its electoral college.
This auditorium, which cost the Regin of Terror, was surprised in the midst of the regular seven year election, when the arguable senators and the aperted deputies roused out twelve miles from Paris to elect Al Doumergue president of France.

"Versailles, whose mirrors have reflected world moving events from the machinations of Madame de Malin-
ton to the signing of the World War treaty in 1918, is less often recognized as the official capital of France.

"Although the Senate and Chamber of Deputies of France convene in Paris now the city is not jointly at Versailles to elect a president. This other ordinary lives for seven years in the Palais de l'Elisee and performs duties similar to those of the British King; he speaks at patriotic gatherings, unveils monuments and calls in new promoters to replace deposed executives. Millerand, under pressure of the crisis of the World War, was elected president. This year the French electoral college is why the $100,000,000 home of Louis XIV, a glorious monument to monarchy unchecked, awoke out of its seven year sleep to find a heavy guard thrown about its marble court while French legislators rolled up to the south wing in automobiles.

"Cologne's early Rathaus where burghers dined and voted, finds a counterpart today in some of London's famous political clubs. Many English members are elected in the Caulton Club and smaller institutions on Pall Mall under the shadow of Buckingham palace and a few blocks from the Parliament buildings. Seldom by the King is merely in approval of a decision by leaders made in a leading 'conservative' or 'liberal'
or 'labor' club."

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

Children's Afternoon Tea.

One Mother Says: Children do not loiter on the way home from school if they have formed the habit of having four o'clock tea with their mother or her guests. The "tea" in the youngsters' case may be a cup of bouillon or cocoa with a wafer or two. The habit they form of meeting their mother promptly and taking to her the fresh experiences of the day forms a firm foundation for real friendship between parent and child.

She Threw Away Calomel and took Beecham's Pills

"I felt so miserable," said the young woman earlier in a fashionable New Jersey hotel. "A friend suggested calomel and I was about to take it. Another friend noticed the calomel on my desk and cautioned me against it. She said her sister took calomel and ate some fruit and the combination 'salivated' her—(loosened) some of her teeth and made her very sick. 'Fearing that my stomach might be in an acid condition, I bought a box of Beecham's Pills and took a dose. The next day I felt fine and I haven't needed anything during the three weeks since.'"

"I wouldn't take anything but Beecham's now. Some of the other girls here take Beecham's and all say they are wonderful."

The Paramount

"THE PAINTED FLAPPER," with Pauline Garon and James Kirkwood in the leading roles, is the leading attraction today and tomorrow at the Paramount.

"The Painted Flapper" unfolds a story that will be found true to life in every small town or large city. The flapper exists everywhere only they are more pronounced in some places, according to their environment. "The Painted Flapper" conveys to every one of those girls a message that will make them sit up and take notice.

The theme of the story is true to life and preaches an old fashioned sermon in a new way. The old fashioned boy who cared more for his studies than dissipation and had his future at heart, is neglected by the girl whom he had loved from childhood, for the fickle, carefree youth who cared for naught but having a good time.

A mother who cared more for her social position than her daughter's happiness, a father who had separated from his wife for years because of her actions, and a real honest to goodness flapper, are the most forcible characters in this remarkable photoplay.

Wednesday and Thursday Reginald Denry will be seen in "The Reckless Age."

The Soisson

"THE LOVE MASTER," featuring Strongheart, the wonder dog, is the feature picture today and tomorrow at the Soisson.

It derives its title from the fact that in this play Strongheart selects his own master without regard to who has legal title to him.

The story is laid in the sparsely settled regions of Canada and centers about the mystery of the young man who has arrived with Strongheart and ends with the solution of the mystery and the love victory of the young hero of the settlement along with the boy from the states.

A dog race, filmed during the progress of a real one contested by the best dog teams in Canada for prizes offered by Laurence Trimble and Jane Murfin, producers of the picture, provides some real thrills. Strongheart's love idyll provides real comedy, and for sheer drama the fight waged by Strongheart against Death on behalf of his "love master" has seldom been equaled on the screen.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday John Barrymore will be seen in "Beau Brummel."

The Orpheum

"THE BEDROOM WINDOW"—Showing today and tomorrow at the Orpheum, is a Paramount picture with May McAvoy, in the leading role.

In Clara Berners's mystery play, "The Bedroom Window," a player is accused of murdering a banker and is finally trapped. In the closing scenes, when the player is led out to his doom by a detective and a police officer, he almost collapses, the player giving a performance which strikes a sympathetic chord in the audience.

It is an unusually fine interpretation, yet, because the solution of the mystery is being kept a secret by the producer-director and the author, the actor must wait for his plaudits until the picture is thrown upon the screen.

Malcolm MacGregor, Ricardo Cortez, Robert Edeson and George Fawcett all have featured roles in the picture. Which of these is the guilty one? The picture tells. May McAvoy and Ethel Wales are also featured in principal roles.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, William Paramount will be seen in "The Man Who Fights Alone."

CHAPTER XIII.

The memory of that tragic moment, strangely enough, was not to live in Andrea's mind by reason of the sight of the collapse of MacCloster's bulk, but by what followed immediately after. Never could she forget the sudden stilling of the shuffling and the instantaneous smile, broadening to a grin, that dawned on the face of every native.

The black throng backed step by step before the terrific heat of the flaming cat. Their scorching faces glowed with sweat, but their eyes hung greedily on the crumpled, sprawling mass that was all that was left of MacCloster. In the pleasurable surfeit of the moment they were careless of the fact that the doom of the entire crew was fixed.

Trevor turned on them in a white rage and with a well-aimed bullet shot an assassin from between the legs of a great hulking brute whose mouth was slaving with revolting enjoyment of the scene. The black's face went gray with fright; his eyes came back with a snap from their sensual feast. Many of his companions laughed aloud, but others only licked thick lips in bestial hunger for more slaughter.

"You!" cried Trevor, pressing the muzzle of his revolver into the quivering stomach of the man he had "killed." "Get your crew together. Make me home."

Half an hour later Andrea found herself once more in MacCloster's hut, but in spite of the fact that all his appointments and the crew were gone with the exception of the one black who had been killed, it seemed utterly strange to her eyes, now no longer glazed by misery. She turned to Trevor, who had not spoken to her since first he had joined her in the cabin. "The boat is quite different," she said. "It's as though I saw it for the first time."

He gave her no answer beyond a questioning glance, nor did he look at her. His eyes were fastened far ahead on the river, tracing out the swirl of the current and deep water. A troubled look came into Andrea's face; she glanced at him and her lips parted twice in the half-smile that precedes kindly speech. "You think I ought to thank you?" she asked. "I saved the worst; if I tried my heart could choke me."

"Thank me?" said Trevor, casting her a casual look. "What for?" Andrea's lips trembled. If only the fire hadn't happened just when it did, she thought, if only it had given him time to find her, to take her in his arms! "For saving me," she answered simply.

"For saving nothing," affirmed Trevor. "For saving the nothing that is left of your beauty and freshness and honor after the touch of that beast."

Overwhelming shame stung her cheeks; she felt all that was noble and generous within her shriveling into a struggling knot. She tried to speak, to protest against his harshness and injustice, but she could only gulp. For hours they sat in absolute silence, and gradually the cold that had struck her heart spread through all her body until her teeth began to chatter.

"Why are you doing that?" asked Trevor sharply. "It isn't really cold." "You don't—doing it—because I—can't help it," chattered Andrea. "I am—cold!" She pressed herself against his body, as though she begged for his arms around her. He drew away from her.

She crouched back in her corner and turned upon him the accusing eyes of a child that has been cruelly wounded; then her womanhood came to the rescue. It reasoned with her, told her that the time for pride had passed, for if she lost this man she lost all men forever. No longer could she say "my world" and think of parties, bond street, excursions and the smartest restaurants; her world was here beside her, to win or lose.

When it came to describing her hours with MacCloster, she harped with supreme feminine intuition on a single fact. Again and again she gave him to understand that except for flogging her across his shoulder to the boat, MacCloster had not once so much as laid a finger on her. So careful was her narrative in its logical sequence of detail that it could not fail to carry conviction with it. Trevor gradually melted to the extent of filling his pipe and lighting it.

She told of her entering the court around the great cat with MacCloster, of his discovery that a case of gin had arrived with his freight and of the only change that had come to his color. At this point in her story Trevor forgot to smoke. He clutched the bowl of his pipe in a grip that made his knuckles show white. She could feel him listening with his whole tense body. She hurried on to her climax; to the description of her strategy in rescuing the crew and of MacCloster's terrifying attack. She even repeated some of his words. "He said,

"Waiting up for me, dearie? and then I drove the knife into his hands and when he watched them back, I hit him across the head and he fell. And then I heard you coming. I thought I had gone mad, that it was not with my ears but with the longing of my heart that I heard you coming. When I called and you answered I forgot that I had ever known fear; I knew that I was safe, forever and forever."

"Good girl," said Trevor huskily. He reached out and patted her hand but his thoughts were not altogether with her; they were lingering behind, hovering over the scene of her elemental battle with MacCloster as though he sought to steep his soul in that recollection in an effort to drown for once and all time the memory of twenty-four hours of torturing jealousy.

"So you're not jealous any more, are you?" pleaded Andrea.

"Jealous!" exclaimed Andrea. "Who said anything about jealousy? It's one rotten quality that, thank God, I don't possess. It's the cancer-worm that eats into the heart of trust. A man that feels it, demeans the woman he loves."

"How extraordinary," murmured Andrea. "Because I don't believe any woman in the world ever really loves an unjealous man. Of course?'"

Trevor was silent for a long time, pondering on this absurd and unanswerable argument. The sun arose and set to work at once to overheat the world; Andrea grew warm and then drew. She began to nod and her body to incline. If it had dropped in a direction directly opposite to that in which it actually did, she would have fallen into the river; as it happened, she fell against Trevor's shoulder. He first assured himself that she was really asleep and then slipped his arm around her and held her close.

He forgot his burns and bruises, his fatigue and hunger; he looked back with exultant pride upon the mad storm of emotions that he had ridden to reach this haven of his soul's peace. The feverish haste with which he had dug out the airplane and patched it up, the white rage in which he had hurled himself with into the air, the absolute and marvellous determination of the steady, unwavering flight that had carried him straight to MacCloster's cabin, all became emblems to him of the power of that which is within us to rise eternally to superhuman heights on the wings of a little love.

He glanced downward at the fair head pressed so close to his shoulder that the wide brim of his helmet shaded it as well as his own and let his eyes follow along the curved-up length of Andrea's figure. She seemed very small, very young, infinitely potent. For the first time in the last twelve hours he consciously remembered who she was and all his bravado in the face of false values, all his logical indifference to established forms, fell from him. He trembled for the things he had done to, the murder he had committed on the person of the Honorable Andrea Peller.

She had said that she knew herself safe with him forever and forever and while he recognized the gentle mood that had so overburdened her tongue, he felt now an aching within him to tell her the Honorable Andrea Pellor, but this much dearer creature of his own making, from the harming touch of tongues as well as hands.

He threw up his head as though to a revivified and ennobled determination that was above fear and murmured a confirmation of the creed that had been born, full-fledged, from her lips. "Whether you want me or mock me, the die is forever cast; your truth and your untruth, your weakness and your strength, parity or parity, I shall take you all and taking you, take only myself; for love is an indivisible, an integral possession!"

CHAPTER XIII.

Andrea did not awake until Trevor withdrew his arm, which was when they were already in sight of their home landing.

By the time she reached the camp she was in no mood to welcome the astonishing sight of three white men calmly taking a stein in Trevor's most comfortable chairs, their helmets and uniforms tossed aside and their shaggy undershirts unbuttoned at the neck. The only thing to be discerned in their favor was that they were all who seemed very small, very young, freshly shaven. It did not cheer her to see that upturned smiling sight of them, Trevor's face cleared.

"Who are the interlopers?" she asked shortly. His eyebrows went up. "Interlopers, Andrea Peller?" he asked with a smile. Then his face turned grim. "Will you do what I ask this time?" he inquired.

She stifled the feeling of rebellion that immediately rose in her at this recurrence of his fighting voice. "Yes," she said meekly.

"Please slip quietly to your room, have your tea and bath alone and dress in your smartest khaki outfit, leggings and all. When you have done that, please wait till I come."

Do YOU Play Ma Jong?

If You Do

—you need not be told how fascinating it is to young and old, how simple it is to play, yet what intricacies it offers to the scientific player.

—you know how the ability to play brings you invitations to attend Ma Jong parties, to join Ma Jong clubs, and opens up opportunities to meet the best and smartest people on an equal footing.

—you will be glad to hear that we are offering the game to everyone at a price that will increase the number of Ma Jong fans and thereby make the game even more popular than ever.

If You Don't

—you will be very glad to know that we are selling to our readers and the public at large a complete game, with a book of directions that may be easily followed and soon teach you the simple rules.

—you have surely wondered about it, for everyone is talking about it. No game in years has attained such popularity in so short a time, and you should satisfy your curiosity about it without any delay.

—we predict it will not be long before you learn to play, because you may do so by buying our game with its simple directions and will soon become not only an ardent enthusiast but an expert player as well.

Here Is The Complete Game We Sell for 50 Cents

When we made our first announcement of such a low-priced set, we received innumerable expressions of surprise and incredulity. This was natural because the cheapest sets in the stores are about $5.00, and everyone wondered how we could make such a big cut in price.

Then, when the games arrived, scores of people came to the office to examine them. Experts, who had spent from $25.00 to $50.00 on their sets scoffingly declared ours could not be the same game they play. It did seem too good to be true. Great was their astonishment, however, when they received a handsome box 12x5½x1 inches in size and upon opening it found therein 144 pieces that corresponded exactly with their own sets. Of course, they were not made of ivory, but the heavy cardboard serves as well, even the finest players conceded, especially as they are printed in 3 colors like the expensive sets.

Furthermore, they scrutinized the book of directions carefully and pronounced it thoroughly accurate, describing the game as played by the best authorities in this country and in China.

But, they saw at once that the playing pieces and the book of directions were not the only parts of our set. One man declared that because it contains gold lacquered metal racks for the use of each player in holding the pieces during the course of the game. These are seldom or ever included with the more expensive sets and are sold separately at from $2.00 up for the set of four racks. Bone dice and 100 wooden counters are also included in the set we are offering you practically at cost.

Our 50 Cent Set Is More Complete Than The $25.00 Sets

Frankly, it is only by contracting for a large quantity that we are able to sell the game at this price. Come in and examine a game. Nearly everyone, who does so, regards it as the most remarkable bargain ever offered and goes away with one or more sets under his arm.

It is not hard to play the game.

It is one of the most fascinating of games.

You will be playing it sooner or later, so why not take up with our great offer. Just clip the coupon printed elsewhere in the paper and bring or send it to the office with 50 cents.

Great Caravan of Rooters to Monessen Saturday Is Object Of Committee Asking for Cars

Believe 600 Students May Be Transported to and From the Game.

ENTHUSIASM SPREADING

Conneautvillians, stirred by the appeal made during the past two or three weeks to awaken and revive the community spirit, now have an opportunity before them to show just how strong they are for boosting their city. The committee of literary boys and girls, who took upon themselves the task of "jacking up" the community in the matter of civic pride, which includes support of its athletics, especially in the schools, plans to take a big cheering squad of students to Monessen Saturday afternoon to give the Orange and Black team moral backing.

This, it is believed, will require all the automobiles the committee is in charge of. J. W. McClaren can secure. He will give much of his time to rounding up men willing to drive their cars to Monessen and back for the advertisement it will give the city and the outfall it will give the students. The cooperation of automobile owners is asked and every man or woman who will drive to the game, whether they have their own car already loaded or not, is asked to notify Mr. McClaren.

He will compile a list of persons who have cars in the neighborhood. It is desired to have a hundred or more machines in the parade which would start from the High School building Saturday at 12:30 o'clock. As many as 600 students or more will be transported.

The undertaking is an enormous one but if Conneautville people enter the spirit of the thing it can be put across. It is the sentiment of the men across. It is a successful caravan of that nature would be an advertisement for Conneautville all along the route from here to Monessen. It would be one of the biggest things ever done to awaken community spirit.

The school is going into the thing with enthusiasm. The committee met with Superintendent B. B. Smith yesterday afternoon and told him it would take care of as many students as would go to go. Those students who have a machine in the family are urged to have their car in line.

A rouser in every seat, is the slogan. Just how many cars will be required to transport the cheering squad will not be determined until Thursday evening. Tickets for the students were ordered from Monessen today. All who purchase one on Wednesday or Thursday, and who do not have any means of their own for getting to the Mon river town, will be cared for.

Mr. McClaren is already at work lining up the cars, including those machines which will be filled with their own load and those who will have vacant seats for students. He is enthusiastic in the proposition and is jumping into it despite the drain on his own time.

The "generalissimo" of the Conneautville-to-Monessen caravan, says, he will have a dependable driver for the head of the parade to make sure it will be no race. Then he will follow it up with the service truck of the Crawford Motor Company, equipped for any kind of trouble on the journey.

The enthusiasm of the boosters is infectious and before the grid season ends this city may be one of the hottest football centers in Western Pennsylvania. Head of it all, the committee points out, however, is the idea of re-creating that community spirit which has been so sadly lacking here for many years.

Other possibilities for Saturday afternoon are that the Bikes' Band and the Junior Republican Ukulele Club, composed of local girls, may be taken along to provide entertainment and new life for the Cokers. The Bikes' Band is just finding out it is becoming interested in its young proteges and would feel slighted unless it were included among the rooters. The "rooters" want to be on deck to do some tooting when Conneautville wins its first game.

Every car owner, willing to go to Monessen, is asked to notify Mr. McClaren, together with notion of how many passengers can be carried. Cars, with loads already selected, are desired in the line of procession to make better the showing of Conneautville.

Constipation makes bright children dull—give them relief with Kellogg's Bran

Constipation dulls the youthful mind—makes children backward in their studies—makes them listless—and can lead to serious disease. Constipation is a dangerous disease.

You cannot afford to take chances in getting relief. You cannot afford to experiment or put off. Kellogg's Bran brings relief—permanent relief if eaten regularly. Even in the most chronic cases of constipation it is guaranteed to bring results. If it fails, your grocer will return your money.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumpled, has brought relief to thousands because it is ALL bran. Remember, only ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective. That is why Kellogg's Bran is recommended by doctors. It sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine. It causes regular, healthy, normal action. For it works as nature works. It is ALL bran.

Have your children eat it regularly—two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Eat it with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Try it in the wonderful recipes on every package.

The flavor is delicious—a crisp, nut-like flavor that delights the taste. Different by far from ordinary bran, which are unpalatable.

and Black tivity again until next season. He will be a senior next year and it should be his "big" year.

Coker players had a holiday yesterday. There was no practice. It was the first lay-off, since the season began and Coach Leroy and Settle, appreciating the fact the boys had quick steadily to practice, allowed the vacation.

Beginning this afternoon the squad will have one of its hardest weeks. The team wants to win its remaining games, which include Monessen, South Brownsville, Indiana, Bradock and Dunbar township.

It is likely that the entire population of Dunbar township will be in Conneautville on Thanksgiving afternoon to see the Cokers clash with D. T. It appears that the latter may have the edge and no one in the township wants to be absent when Conneautville is finally taken into the Red and Black fold. It should be a good game.

Already the Cokers are looking ahead to the 1925 season. It is a hopeful crew that sees into the future. Many of the "green" players are in school for two and three years yet and it is believed they will be coming on fast next fall.

If Conneautville could win its next five games the showing for the season would not be so bad.

The judging committee has not yet been able to get together to determine the prize winners in the slogan and cartoon contest.

Untown people are trying to arrange a game at that place between the Untown Independents and the former Conneautville Tornadoes for Armistice Day. The winner, it is said, would play Brownsville for the county championship. Such a game, foisted on the public, would be a big frost. The Tornadoes have not been organized this year and there is not sufficient time now to secure a team to cope with any top-notch outfit. Such a clash would simply be a money-grabbing act, it is pointed out, and it has all the appearance of being arranged for just such a purpose. It is not likely any of the local athletes will try to impose on the Untown fans by posing as "Tornadoes."

Dodger Pitching Star

Pitcher Fred Marberry Is Coming Along Fast

Fred Marberry of Washington is another season will be regarded as one of the master hurlers of the league.

Players that have batted against Marberry say that he has the heat fast ball in the business today. Some say that he comes nearer Walter Johnson's former speed than any man that has arrived since Johnson made his debut.

Marberry is some distance from being a finished pitcher. He needs better control of the fast one and he needs a bit more snuff to make the fast ball more effective but you can put down the name of Marberry for future reference. He is bound to elude later on in his career and not much later at that.

Harris Is Fifth Manager to Lead Washington Team

Stanley Harris, who has led the Washington club to a pennant for the first time in its history, is the fifth manager the Senators have had in the last five years. Clark Griffith, who first managed the club in 1912 and who is now president of the club, quit as the pilot after the team finished sixth in 1920. He appointed George McBride to the post and the Senators finished fourth in 1921. In 1922 Clyde Milan led the team and the Senators ended their campaign in sixth place again. Last year Donie Bush was the manager and the Washington team landed in fourth place.
